For Immediate Release: October 8, 2014

SCHOOL IS OPEN, DO NOT SPEED IN SCHOOL ZONES

Hempstead, NY – The Nassau County Traffic and Parking Violations Agency (TPVA) today released a list of 77 speed camera enforcement locations throughout Nassau County's 56 school districts. Some locations are currently operational while others are still being analyzed for constructability, viability and safety risk to students. Locations are subject to change; residents should be aware that all 400 public and parochial schools in Nassau County are eligible to be monitored for compliance of the posted speed limit - provided only one is operational at any given time in the same school district.

TPVA Executive Director Judge John Marks stated, "Speed cameras are operational throughout Nassau County. Our goal is to make our roadways safer by reducing speeding vehicles, collisions, associated injuries and fatalities. A child has only a 30 percent chance of surviving being struck by a car traveling 40 mph, but an 80 percent chance of surviving if the car is traveling 30 mph. School is open; motorists should slow down, drive carefully and remember that school zones are photo enforced between 7am and 6pm on school days. Moreover, whether enforced by camera or not, do not speed through school zones. Patrol officers can issue tickets anytime a motorist is driving over the posted limit. Speed cameras only issue tickets when motorists speed through the posted limit by more than 10 mph."

Statistics from the Tri-State Transportation Campaign indicate a high risk of being struck by a vehicle within a quarter mile of a school in Nassau County. In 2012 alone, among the 37 pedestrians killed on Nassau County's streets, 14 were hit within a quarter of a mile of school, accounting for nearly 40 percent of total pedestrian fatalities countywide. Though not everyone killed in these areas were school-age children, such a high probability of pedestrian deaths occurring near schools raises concerns about potential traffic dangers for children.
